Are you an experienced Production Planner with a background in FMCG? Do you have experience scheduling for a portfolio of production lines in a busy, highly automated production environment operating 24/7?

If the answer is yes - then look no further. Church & Dwight UK Ltd have an exciting opportunity for a Production Planning Manager to join our team based in Folkestone, Kent, on a permanent contract.

This role is responsible for producing production plans for designated packaging lines and bulk processing, ensuring the most efficient use of resources, considering stock requirement dates. You will smooth any peaks to ensure headcount is used effectively, escalating any peaks or trends that cannot be smoothed and that will cause capacity issues, inventory issues or overtime / shift working.

This role is also involved in significant projects and requires the ability to work cross functionally, you will liaise with Supply Chain and contractors to ensure suppliers bring in materials in time to support the plans and change when necessary. Attention to detail and the ability to flex with changing circumstances are vital.

Organisational and communication skills are key to this role, with the ability to build relationships at all levels and be a team player keen to adapt and to contribute to the common goals of the department and business overall. The ideal candidate will have experience within an FMCG environment and the ability to manage projects in a time effective manner is essential.

This is a great opportunity to work with a recognisable global brand and shape its future. Sounds interesting? Send us your CV confirming your salary expectations and let's talk! HRDepartment.UK@Churchdwright.com
